

Low-income countries have younger populations than high-income countries do. As countries become richer, fertility rates fall and life expectancy rises.

Note: Ages 80 and older are combined into a single group.

Source: World Bank and UN Population Division. World Development Indicators (SP.POP.0004.MA.5Y and other five-year bands by sex).