

The food deficit measures, on average, how much food people need to stop them from being considered undernourished. They have generally been declining, but food deficits remain at levels where many people lack sufficient calories.

Depth of the food deficit (kilocalories per person per day)

Source: Food and Agriculture Organization. World Development Indicators (SN.ITK.DFCT).